To whom it may concern,

Userful's DiscoverStation was the solution to all our problems. We were able to deploy a customized Internet computing platform with a full office productivity suite, implement much needed multilingual support, completely secure our PCs against internal and external misuse, and add multimedia and USB keydrive support—all in a single, invisible transition that Userful handled.

We received numerous compliments from patrons on the new system, and staff training was a non-issue. The total cost for DiscoverStation, factoring together hardware costs and the cost of IT support time, was 75% less than the cost of purchasing and maintaining the computers DiscoverStation replaced.

I would happily recommend DiscoverStation to any library looking to dramatically reduce the costs and hassles associated with purchasing, setting up, and maintaining public computers.

Yours sincerely,
